

ALEXANDRIA. TUESDAY EVENING, JUNE 23.

IN THE published report of the proceed ings of a republican club in Washington a pight or two ago, it was stated that a negro member said "all rebels are democrats, and and that the impression it made upon him all democrats are --- " The --- was used by the newspaper because the word it represented was too coarse for eyes polite, but what it meant was plain to everybody who saw it, who is familiar with negro politicians, and their thoughts and their manner of expressing them. And what he said was received with laughter and applause by his white fellow members. The pegro is not to blame; he knows no better. But sooner or later the white men, whose applause will naturally tend to incite him to substitute sets for words, will have a real zing sense of the fact that chickens come home to roost. Southern people understand negroes and make allowance for them. Those of the North do neither.

WISE AS he is, Prince Bismarck is not wise enough to know that servants should obey their masters, and that it is folly to kick against the pricks. As long as Germany shall retain its present form of government the Emperor will be master of all the people of that country, princes as well as peasants, and so long will it be vain for any of them to attempt to establish a policy for that country contrary to his own. They may cherish their private ideas on such subjects, but when they attempt to set them in open opposition to the Emperor's, they contend against the inevitable-which is sublimated foolishness. For doing so the Emperor has just dubbed the Prince an "ungrateful vassal," and he will doubtless be so called during the remainder of his life.

THE SCHOOL-CLOSING SEASON IS NOW upon us, and the principals of the various institutes are respectfully requested to retrench, as far as possible, in writing the descriptions of the commencements. Of course the premium list is readable and interesting to many, but it is often thought that it is unnecessary to print a scholar's name over and over again when he or she chances to excel in several studies, when the ground could be covered by simply stating that so and so received medals or premiums in this, that or the other study. In publishing a daily paper (especially one which has to be on the press at a certain hour every evening) the editors are compelled to utilize every minute of the day and to be always boiling down the current news in order to have the paper circulated through the city on time; hence it often happens that articles unduly spun cut have to be condensed in the office or omitted. The propriety of this suggestion will be seen by all reasonsble people, and it is hoped no further hint may be necessary.

AND NOW it has been discovered that there is a shortage in the financial accounts of the Geological Survey. What with Cape May cottages and $50,000 trips of the President, the serious charges against the Postmaster General, the practical conviction of the Commissioner of Pensions, the imputations upon the Superintendent of the Census, and the crookedness in the Geological Survey, the deficit in the national Treasury could readily be accounted for, even if the lest Congress had not appropriated more than a billion dellars. It is a rare thing to hear of charges against official integrity in foreign countries, but here they have become so common that they excite no special won-

MONROE doctrine or not, the experience terest of science. of almost a century has demonstrated the indisputable fact that Hayti, under negro rule, is retrograding, rather than advancing in civilization. This strengthens the idea Cicalia, on the Memphis and Little Rock entertained by those most familiar with ne gro character, by association as well as history, that negroes removed from the association and control of white men, and left to themselves, will soon revert to the condition of their barbarons cousins in the land of times, three times at a stranger who had their forefathers. And yet it is to such a race Mr. Harrison, and the vast majority of the republican party in the North, would entrust the control of all those south- him. ern communities, large as well as small, in an indecent exposure of his person. Mr. which negroes outnumber the white people.

THE HIGH tariff imposed by the McKinley bill upon foreign products imported into ond time and carried away a quart ty of this country has incited certain foreign canned goods. O born remonstrated and countries to the formation of a commercial agreement, by which restrictions upon trade among themselves shall be removed while the duties upon articles imported by them from other countries, among which this one is included, shall be increased. Well, upon the principle that like begets like, such an agreement is by no means suprising. But all the same, the republicans say the Mc-Kinley bill redounds to the interest of the farmers-whose products compose almost the entire exports of this country.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Special Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette. WARHINGTON, D. C., June 23, 1891. Congressman McMillin of Tennessee is still here. He says that since he was here last be has heard that his support for the Speakership of the next House will be stronger from New York and the New England States than he then supposed, and that consequently his hopes of receiving that ocnor are brighter than they were. Mr. McMillin will be one of the orators at the annual Tammany banquet in New York on the 4 h of July. He says he attended the late Kentucky State democratic convention, was that the men who composed it were in favor of the free coinage of silver and were opposed to slapping any democrat.

General Ordway of the District of Columbia mi itia says he has heard nothing more of the recent attack made upon him by the knights of labor for instructing his forces how to act if called cut by the government to suppress disorder, and doesn't expect to, The General had hardly gotten over the assault made upon him by the negro militia before the knights assailed him, but he has, so far at least, successfully defended himself against both.

By curious figuring the Treasury statement lesued to-day shows that there is some available money there, only a little more than a million dollars, however, and as an interest debt of five millions and a pensions debt of eleven millions will be due on the first of next month, the question of issuing and selling more bonds in order to meet those debts is still under consideration.

Ex-Congress man Bowden of Virginia was here to-day, just from Norfolk. He says politics are exceedingly flat in his State, and from present appearances are likely to remain so for some time. He says all the discharged foremen at the Norfolk navy yard stood the competitive examination for reappointment, and that probably all of them will be reinstated. He says he heard one of the examiners say that the men in the Norfolk yard are of higher grade than these in the Brocklyn and Portsmeuth yards.

It is said to day that not only has Dr. Hammet been assured of Dr Townshend's p'ace as Health Officer of the District of Co'umbis on the first proxime, but that before that time Dr. Townshend will tender his resignation. Making a New Face

Some time ago Miss Mary Brady, of Brook lyn, was attacked with a cancerons growth on her face, which greatly disfigured her from her eyes to her chin. Dr. Frank L. R. Telamore two weeks ago became interested in the case and off-red to try and make a new face for her. She consented to undergo the operation, and ten days ago he com-menced operations by drawing the flosh and skin as much as possible from the sides of the jaws. Binging the fish and skin forward he managed to form the cheeks, fer To cover the cain he took portions of fleeb from the neck and formed the lips by the same method. Then a celluloid bridge was formed for the noss. Portions of fissh from the neck ware used to cover it, and the whole was sawed, the face bandaged up and the nation! allowed to rest. Two days later the delicate operation of forming eyelidwas undertaken. Dr. Tetamore used por tions of the lower cheek for this purpose, stitching them to what remained of the orisinal eyelids. This was successful. Yester day the operation was completed with the formation of the nostrils and bridge of the The patient stands the operation very well, and the doctor believes that it will be a success.
